Analysis of the Assessment Process:

(Comments on the collection of data, appropriateness of assessments, and faculty involvement)

All data was collected through TK20. However, a few submissions were not scored in TK20 and therefore, omitted from the final count. Each assessment appropriately addressed the standard indicated. Faculty were involved in the development of assessments and scoring guides. Careful consideration was involved in matching assessments and standards.

Additional Comments:

If there is a core set of objectives for all Masters of Education courses, then the core classes and the core objectives should all be the same. Each separate content area should have specific objectives for the content they cover. So the athletics and activities should have a few objectives specific for the classes that focus on athletics and activities. These in my mind are concentrations of the masters of Education. I might be totally off from our last conversation but if they all share a core set of classes the only differences are a handful of classes focused on the different specialty areas? I don't see any objective here that make Athletics and Activities a unique program?

With the initial cycle of assessments happening, we need to add a few components to the report. We need to discuss the enrollment trends of the program and see if there are things that the program can do to assist in the recruitment of students. Is there a reason why we think the enrollment has dropped 27%? The graduate rates are high, and I don't think there is anything to say but to keep doing what you are doing on the graduation rates.

In the data section of the report, it would be helpful to know the percentage of students who did the assignment. Due to the variation data, it asks the question if the rotation of courses is the reason for the variation or the lack of participation of some cohorts? Some explanation why some areas have 935 students (EDU524) and others have 7 students (DU526) would be helpful to understand the data. It might also help to have the average grade on the assignment. I know I am starting to ask for more data, but with the new system these are things we will be able to pull as the assignments are built into the system and then we will have a complete picture of what students are doing in these classes. Also there needs to be a discussion as to how the university is going to get data produced in the future... There were several classes with little to no data uploaded and that is something we have to have a plan on how to solve.

Because almost all the assessment is at 100% success, we absolutely need to include the external testing to provide some legitimacy to the assessment we are doing. If students are not successful at the external assessment, then this is evidence that we need to make adjustments. What is the external assessment tool for this degree??? Is there a certification test they take?

Again, this will happen with the new system, but we also need to look at the rubrics being used and make sure they are appropriate to the objectives of the program. With the changes with accreditation I am sure these will change, but just something that we need to think about.

For the Analysis of the Assessment Process we need a more detailed description of how the data was collected, the training of the faculty, the submission of data. Any changes that need to be made also go here in this section.
